Dear [REDACTED]:

This will acknowledge your recent wire. I understand your feeling.

I regret that the Administration did not appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Watergate affair. It is my understanding that the House Banking and Currency Committee may hold full public hearings into the Republican campaign finances that have been linked to the Watergate bugging case. Also, the Administrative Practice and Procedures Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee is considering an investigation into the matter as well.

As you do know, I am sure, a federal grand jury has returned an indictment against seven men, charging them with conspiracy to steal documents and eavesdrop on the Democratic headquarters. The most recent newspaper account indicates that the trial will begin on November 15th.

With best wishes.

Sincerely,

Clifford P. Case
